Restoration of the power supply on the island of Hydra

HEDNO would like to announce that, following the partial restoration of the power supply on the island of Hydra this morning at 11:00, the power supply was fully restored all over the island at 15:10.

HEDNO crews restored the fault found at the Medium Voltage Network on the island's land connection and put in operation the auxiliary submarine cable connecting Hydra Network with continental Greece, while the works on the main submarine cable still continue.

At the same time, for safety reasons up to the completion of all works on the main interconnection, generators of 3MW total power still remain on the island, ensuring Hydra's energy independence and its uninterrupted power supply.

HEDNO would like to apologize once again for any inconvenience to the island's inhabitants and visitors.
